CABINET CONSIDERS FINANCIAL SITUATION

President and all Members of His Cabinet Talk Over the Recent Flurry in New York—Cortelyou Says the Situation is Rapidly Improving but is Unwilling to Give out a Statement as to the Future.

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Roosevelt was in conference with all the members of the cabinet except Secretary Taft for more than two hours yesterday. The financial situation was under consideration. Secretary Cortelyou shares the view that the general money situation throughout this country and especially in New York is steadily improving. Although he is averse to making any public statement on the outlook, it is known that he views the situation with far greater equanimity than at any time during the last 10 days. From the first he has realized that the gravest consequence might result from a general impairment of public confidence in the financial institutions of the country through ignorance of their status, and he has not hesitated to make immediate use of the great resources of the United States treasury to check the apprehension manifested last week. During the last seven days he has deposited in the national banks a sum approximately $50,000,000, and since early in September, when the secretary began his weekly distributions, nearly $70,000,000 have been deposited, which brings the amount of public funds now in the national banks up to over $215,000,000, of which about $12,500,000 has been deposited to the credit of government disbursing officers. During President Cleveland's first term very large amounts of public funds were deposited in the national banks for the declared purpose of re-

GERMANY THIRSTS FOR MORE REFORM

Berlin, Oct. 30.—Germany is not satisfied with the ruin of Count Von Moltke and disgrace of his fellow Knights of the Round Table, who figured at the Von Moltke-Harden libel trial. The men guilty of immoralities, as shocking as those attributed to Von Moltke, still hold high positions about the Kaiser and wield a vast influence in public affairs," says the Tageblatt. "These must be exposed and expelled from court in disgrace." Officialdom is convinced that a complete investigation will be ordered by Kaiser Wilhelm.

WAS LOST AT THE BATTLE OF LAIO YANG

Little Girl Solicits Alms From Her Father and Mother in the Streets of Moscow and is Recognized—A Story That Reads Like a Fairy Tale—Girl Who Was a Wanderer for Years Restored to Her Anxious Parents.

Moscow, Oct. 30.—The crowd of promenaders on the Tverskaya witnessed the ending of a war tragedy which had its beginning at the battle of Laio Yang. A smart landau drawn by a fine team of horses drew up to a restaurant. The occupants, a handsome officer and his wife, stepped out and at that moment a little beggar girl, tattered and torn, drew near, extending her hand with a piteous appeal for alms. The woman fumbled around in her pocket, drew out the desired coin and was about to hand it to the beggar, but upon catching sight of the girl's face, she uttered a scream and rushing forward threw her arms around her neck and began hugging and kissing her. After this the officer and his wife and the little tattered and torn beggar girl drove away. The following explanation of the scene was obtained later. During the battle of Laio Yang the officer was in command of a regiment and lived with his wife and daughter in a Chinese hut near the scene of operations. When the flight of the Russian soldiers began, they were followed by bands of roving bandits, who burned and looted everything they could lay their hands on. In the panic which followed the disordered retreat the officer's daughter, a very young girl, was lost. A few days later a detachment of Russian soldiers put the bandits to flight and regained much of the plundered goods. They also found the little girl, whom they took along with them. One of the soldiers took a great fancy to her and when he was wounded and sent to recuperate at Moscow, she went with him. In Moscow the man died, and the little girl was left alone to wander the streets and live on the pittance she could beg. Good fortune led her to the street where her parents were driving, and thus the family was reunited.
